

Alcohol and aggression – A pilot to a Swiss observational bar study

Summary:

Background: Alcohol causes considerable burden of injury as well as social burden from contributing to the development of aggression. One of the common environments for alcohol-related aggression are bars.

Workplan: Translation and adaptation of questionnaire and observation grid for alcohol-related aggression in bars.

Significance/Impact: Besides anecdotal evidence little is known about alcohol and aggression in Swiss bars. This pilot may trigger a systematic study and subsequent interventions to improve the situation.